WHEN WAS THE LAST TIME YOU LOOKED AT A LEAF?

When was the last time you looked at a leaf? I mean really looked at one. We see them on the trees, then we walk through piles of them in the Fall or rake them up and throw them in a fire without giving them a second thought. But for some reason, one caught my attention today. It was just lying in our garage when I saw it and picked it up. It was a tiny thing, just part of a leaf, actually-no more than an inch long and less than a half inch wide-but something about it fascinated me; something about it reminded me of lace. I took a picture of it so I could zoom in and get a good look at it.

This simple little leaf reminded me of just how awesome my God is. Who but God would put so much detail into something that mostly gets trampled under-foot or overlooked? If He put that much effort into forming a leaf, how much more delight must He have taken in creating mankind in His own image and likeness? Just as there is a wide variety of leaves-different shapes, different sizes and yes, many different colors-there is even more beauty in the diversity of human beings. We are each created to reflect just who God wanted us to be. Skin color, hair color, eye color, height, body shape, all these things and many more were determined at conception! How dull it would be if every person on this planet all looked just alike! It must surely break the Creator's heart to see His prize creations fighting over something like the color of our skin. The cardinal doesn't hate the blue bird just because they're different shades of beautiful. Sadly, Humans are the only creatures that are divided by something that every other thing in Nature celebrates!
